

Entertainment of Wednesday, 16 March 2016

Source: Ghanareporter.com

Ghanaians celebrate the dead and negativity - Kisa Gbekte

Actress Kisa Gbekte, late Bishop Bob Okala and late DCOP Awuni

The young actress has made public her displeasure with how Ghanaians have been handling issues related to the dead and other negative issues.

In her latest Facebook rant on Monday evening, she threw shades at Ghanaians, somewhat describing them as ungrateful people who mostly celebrate the dead and negativity more than anything else.

According to her, Ghanaians barely talk about the living and also hardly celebrate positive events.

Kisa's comment comes at a time when the country is mourning the death of two of its illustrious sons Bishop Bob and DCOP Awuni. Could that be the reason for her frustration?

See her post below:

Kisa Gbekte

on Monday

I am from a country where when you are a live people will barely talk about, when you make a post on Facebook whatsapp etc no one cares, sometimes u get notice for ur comments and suggestion most at times u get relegated to the background, but when this same people hear bad news about you or hears you are dead, they start sharing your pictures, talk about you etc, saying all sort of lovely words.welcome to Ghana where the dead and negativity is celebrated, GOOD EVENING.

496

37

5

Comments:

This article has 7 comment\(s\), give your comment